I was waking in a Jack Pine forest when suddenly a female spruce flew off the ground and landed about six feet up in a Jack Pine. She just sat there and ate Jack Pine needles, providing me with a great photo op. When I left she was still there.

White-throated Sparrow Zonotrichia alficollis

I was standing by the feeder watching some Purple Finches eat sunflower seeds, when an adult White-throated Sparrow flew to the ground and also started eating sunflower seeds.
